Blair supports freezing city's police budget

$1 billion and holding?

Cop association 'deeply disappointed' in launch of bargaining website

Police Chief Bill Blair is recommending the police service have its budget frozen in 2015 and the number of uniform officers reduced by 43.

If the board approves, it will be the first time in 10 years the police budget has been flatlined, assuring an early political victory for incoming John Tory.

This year the budget has ballooned to $1 billion.

The civilian oversight board will consider Blair's request next week. He's asking the board to approve the force's 2015 net operating request of $957.76 million.

The chief is also asking the board to approve a reduction of 43 uniform officers to 5,462 while increasing civilian staff by 56 to 2,218.

The board released the figures Thursday in the agenda for next week's meeting — at the same time taking the unusual step of launching a "bargaining website" days before contract talks are set to begin.

The website says there "needs to be a break" in pay hikes "far exceeding" those received by other municipal- and private-sector workers.

The current contract expires Dec. 31. Labour negotiations are scheduled to begin next week.

The board is "hopeful" it will achieve a negotiated collective agreement with the Toronto Police Association "that is fair to our officers and reflects the capacity to pay of Toronto's taxpayers," the website says.

The association is "deeply disappointed" about the website and the "opportunistic grandstanding" of board chairman Alok Mukherjee, said TPA president Mike McCormack.

"This is nothing more than a politically motivated move, one which can only be detrimental to the collective bargaining process, the public and the police service,"

Employment

Work-for-free advice 'wrong message': Kenney

Telling jobless university graduates to work for free until the job market improves would be asking them to lower their expectations, which is "the wrong message" to be sending to Canada's youth, federal Employment Minister Jason Kenney said Thursday.

His comments follow controversial remarks Bank of Canada governor Stephen Poloz made earlier this week, when he suggested young Canadians and others struggling to find work should acquire more experience through volunteering in an area close to their expertise.

"I disagree with governor Poloz on this," Kenney told reporters after delivering a speech to a Toronto business crowd.

"I think kids should work for pay."

Poloz's remarks to a House of Commons committee on Tuesday were criticized by advocates for interns and young workers, who said they show the central bank governor is out of touch with the reality facing would-be workers.

"I don't think we should be sending message to young people to reduce their expectations," Kenney said.

In his speech, Kenney said the youth unemployment in the GTA was around 20 per cent.

He also referred to what he called the "paradox of too many Canadians without jobs in an economy of too many jobs without Canadians," since employers cannot find people with the skills they need in their businesses. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ford, McCallion cases spur review of conflict law

Governance. Province considering update to long-standing Municipal Conflict of Interest Act

Outgoing Mississauga Mayor Hazel McCallion. CHRIS SO/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Outgoing Mayor Rob Ford. DAVID COOPER/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Following elections dominated by scandals in cities such as Brampton, Toronto and London, the province's conflict-of-interest law could finally get its first significant update in almost 40 years.

The provincial government has confirmed that it is looking at changing the law.

Last year, a Divisional Court judge overturned a lower court ruling that would have turfed Mayor Rob Ford from office under the Municipal Conflict of Interest Act, after Ford took part in a vote on whether he should have to pay back $3,150 in donations he improperly solicited for his football charity.

In 2013, a judge also dismissed conflict charges under the act against Mississauga Mayor Hazel McCallion, after she voted on a decision that could have saved her son's development company as much as $11 million in development charges.

In both cases, the law was heavily criticized: In Ford's case for being too black or white, because the only punishment under the MCIA for knowingly breaking the law is removal from office, regardless of how minor the conflict. And in McCallion's case, because the law demands that a private citizen must bear the burden of bringing a case before the courts, which can cost hundreds of thousands of dollars.

It also came under strong scrutiny in 2011, when Justice Douglas Cunningham released his report on a judicial inquiry into McCalliion's behind-the-scenes lobbying for a failed $1.6-billion development by her son's company. He cleared her largely because of the narrow scope of the act, but called for sweeping changes to laws that govern municipal politicians, including the MCIA. His recommendations were ignored at the time.

"The ministry is reviewing the Municipal Conflict of Interest Act, and is considering Justice Cunningham's recommendations," said Mark Cripps, a spokesperson for the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing.

The news will come as a welcome surprise to many who work in the field of municipal governance.

"There seems to be a huge gaping hole in the MCIA," lawyer John Mascarin, who specializes in municipal government conflicts, said Thursday, shortly before the ministry told Torstar News Service about its review of the act. Mascarin said the act is often presented in cases as a "complete code."

"Justice Cunningham found the complete opposite. It's not a complete code." Mascarin used McCallion's case as an example.

The existing act can let a politician off the hook even if she is in a clear conflict in her behaviour outside city hall, as long as she declares a conflict when council deals with the issue.

Cunningham found McCallion broke "common law principles" for her aggressive backroom lobbying on behalf of her son's company, but because he had to follow the letter of the act, she was cleared because she declared a conflict when the development came before city council.

Fennell threatens to sue councillors

Brampton Mayor Susan Fennell
TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Outgoing Brampton Mayor Susan Fennell is threatening to sue two city councillors, accusing them of defamatory statements regarding the expenses scandal that has embroiled the chief magistrate.

The libel notice comes days before a special Brampton council meeting to possibly punish the mayor after an audit concluded Fennell broke spending rules 266 times and an integrity commissioner's ruling that she violated the city's code of conduct.

In her libel notice, Fennell accuses Brampton councillors John Sprovieri and John Sanderson of defamation in statements made to Torstar News Service, which is also named in her threatened legal action. Through her lawyer, she says the councillors and Torstar's coverage "meant to convey" the mayor is "irresponsible," has angered taxpayers, lives a "jetsetting lifestyle" and used the threat of legal action to prevent council discussion of her code of conduct violation, among other allegations.

"Mayor Fennell demands that the intended defendants immediately publish an unequivocal apology and retraction," the mayor's lawyer, David Shiller, wrote Thursday in the libel notice.

El Mo saved by Bay Street guru Michael Wekerle

New Dragon.
New panelist on CBC's popular show is described as a cross between Mick Jagger and Warren Buffett

A Bay Street investment maverick has saved the El Mocambo Tavern.

Michael Wekerle, co-founder and CEO of merchant bank Difference Capital and new panelist on CBC's Dragon's Den, confirmed on Twitter Thursday that he has rescued the legendary music venue at Spadina Avenue and College Street, which was slated for closure Thursday night.

"YES it's true," Wekerle, 50, tweeted in response to a brief report on CBC's website.

"I will be making a major announcement tonight at 9pm at @ElMocamboTavern! See you all there! #Rockforlife!" he added.

Wekerle — a highly connected and offbeat tech industry trader who has been described as a cross between Mick Jagger and Warren Buffett — was set to take the El Mo stage to "rock out" with his band in celebration, said friend Michael Burden.

The father of six made headlines in September when his 918 Porsche Spyder went up in flames at a Caledon gas station. Wekerle was not injured in the freak accident, but his pricey silver Porsche — one of only two of its kind ever to hit the road in Canada — was totalled.

The historic Toronto music club — which has hosted the likes of the Rolling Stones, the Ramones and U2 — was set to go out with one final bang tonight, before closing its doors for good.

Wekerle was slated to officially be handed the keys Thursday night at the Elmo, a night originally slated as a final gig and benefit for the Parkinson's disease charity, featuring John Cafferty and the Beaver Brown Band, the Pat Travers Band, Wally Palmer of the Romantics and other classic-rock acts.

Actor Ben Ayres plays a doctor on the show Saving Hope. COURTESY BELL MEDIA

Hospital patient suing actor over rectal exam

'More than one set of hands.' TV producer, broadcaster also named in lawsuit

A Brampton hospital patient is suing an actor and producer from a Canadian television series for allegedly violating his privacy and assaulting him during a rectal exam.

Walter Fisher is also suing Ontario's largest community hospital and Bell Media for what he claims was a gross violation of his privacy. Fisher alleges that an actor and producer from the CTV medical drama Saving Hope misrepresented themselves as medical students, sat in on his consultation and participated in his examination at Brampton Civic Hospital in 2012 — without his consent.

The Brampton man claims he was led to believe the television duo were training to become doctors when they were actually conducting background research for their show.

A notice of legal action such as Fisher's contains allegations not yet proven in court.

Fisher is seeking $100,000 in damages against his physician, the William Osler Health System, which runs the hospital, Saving Hope actor Benjamin Ayres and producer Maggie Gilmour, ICF Films, which produces the show, and Bell Media which broadcasts it.

He filed a notice of action against the defendants at Brampton Superior Court on Oct. 14. Cambridge LLP partner Douglas Elliott is representing Fisher and told Torstar News Service his client felt "violated" by the alleged privacy breach.

William Osler Health System spokeswoman Cara Francis said privacy policy restricted the hospital from speaking about an individual patient's case.

The alleged incident occurred on Oct. 18, 2012, when Fisher attended the Brampton hospital's emergency department suffering from gastroenteritis, the court document states.

He was treated by a doctor who, Elliot said, is also a medical consultant for Saving Hope, set in a hospital emergency room.

On the day Fisher was treated at the hospital, the doctor had a man and a woman shadowing her in medical scrubs, Elliott said. The pair, who Elliott believes to be Ayres and Gilmour, were introduced to Fisher by their first names only, and no one mentioned their involvement in the television series, he said.

Fisher alleges the pair sat in on his consultation, where he had to talk through his medical problems, and that they did not leave the room during his rectal examination.

"He had his back to them, but alleges that when the examination was taking place he could feel more than one set of hands touching him," Elliott told Torstar.

Cost of Pan Am security still a mystery

With plans to have 7,000 security personnel on the ground for the Pan Am Games next year, critics at Queen's Park say the real price tag on a growing budget is still a mystery.

Amid continuing controversy over the $81-million contract the province awarded a U.S.-based firm, there are concerns the 5,000-strong private security complement, supplemented by a push to recruit students, could suffer from inexperience.

"They talk a good game and everything's hunky-dory, but they can't possibly be under budget," said the provincial NDP critic for the Games, MPP Paul Miller. "I know they're going to exceed their budget, but by how much?"

In September, Tourism, Culture and Sport Minister Michael Coteau said the $239-million overall security budget — already twice the original cost — is still just an estimate. He told reporters then that a final cost for the Integrated Security Unit, made up of regional forces and private security led by the OPP, could not be provided at this stage.

And what the budget may not fully account for are on-the-ground needs come Games time.

"Should the threat level change, the scope and scale of security will change as well," said OPP Staff Sgt. Rick LePage, private security co-ordinator for the ISU, at a security briefing Thursday. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Toronto-to-N.Y.C. bus crash injures dozens

A bus heading from Toronto to New York City crashed into a wrecked car and a tractor-trailer on Interstate 81 outside Syracuse, N.Y., early Thursday, injuring more than two dozen people, authorities said.

The Pine Hill Trailways bus with 52 passengers on board was travelling south on I-81 around 2:30 a.m. when it slammed into a car that had just crashed into a guard rail and came to rest in the highway's left lane just south of Syracuse, the Onondaga County Sheriff's Office said.

Deputies said the bus then hit the rear of a tractor-trailer whose driver had pulled over on the highway's shoulder to offer assistance to the car's driver.

Twenty-six of the passengers and the bus driver were injured, officials said.

It took emergency crews two hours to extricate the driver, Kelvin Sharpe Sr. of Buffalo, from the vehicle's smashed-in front end, deputies said. He was in critical condition at a Syracuse hospital.

The injured passengers mostly suffered lower extremity, chest, back and facial injuries, all of them apparently minor, police said. They were transported to hospitals in the 10 ambulances and other emergency vehicles that responded to the crash scene.

Thirteen patients were treated at the Upstate University Hospital and 11 of them were released, a spokeswoman said in an email to The Canadian Press.

Onondaga County sheriff's detective Jon Seeber told the Post-Standard that there was a language barrier between some of the passengers and rescue crews. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tory persuades city manager to delay retirement

Staying back. Joe Pennachetti, who had been slated to retire this month, will continue through new mayor's first budget

Toronto city manager Joe Pennachetti has accepted mayor-elect John Tory's request to delay his retirement until the end of April, after Tory's first budget.

Pennachetti, the city's top civil servant for the past six years, had planned to retire at the end of November. Tory, the first person in decades to be elected mayor of Toronto without first serving on city council, called Pennachetti a "strong, trusted leader."

"I felt that from the standpoint of a new council, but in particular a new mayor, and a new mayor who, to be candid, was new to city hall, that we would all best be served if he would give some consideration to staying here at the city hall and continuing to lead the public service" through the budget cycle, Tory said at a city hall news conference with Pennachetti on Thursday.

"Every additional day we can get, in terms of public service, from Joe Pennachetti, will be a day that will be good for the City of Toronto," Tory said.

Council must approve the extension at its first meeting, but that is a mere formality. Pennachetti, a soft-spoken accountant, is respected by councillors of all stripes.

He said the city is entering "a critical four or five months" of intergovernmental discussions.

Joe Pennachetti will stay on as city manager until John Tory's first budget.
LUCAS OLENIUK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

The Tory-led government, he said, can make significant progress on transit and housing in conjunction with Ottawa and Queen's Park.

He said he had previously been "pretty firm" about his decision to leave, even when councillors urged him to reconsider. But he made the decision while serving under Mayor Rob Ford.

"It was a long four years," he said.

Vet charms commuters with war tunes, poppies

'God bless you'. For over two decades, Bill Reid has been singing old war songs at GO station

Every November, 80-year-old veteran Bill Reid — part Vera Lynn, part Mister Rogers — pins poppies on smiling commuters and belts out hits of the blitz, reminding the Toronto-bound, "There'll always be an England...," offering hearty encouragement to the late and the rushed at the Appleby GO station.

The retired teacher and principal takes a seat when the train leaves and talks about how, in his second year pinning poppies at the station (1989), a man told him his father had been a prisoner of war in Germany for three years. The father used to sing a song, but the man couldn't quite remember the words.

"It wouldn't happen to be, 'Coming in on a wing and a prayer,'" Reid sings, raising his fist like Céline Dion in the retelling. "I've been singing ever since."

He comes for the morning rush, arriving in darkness at 5:50 a.m., leaving after the 8:21 train.

In his 26th year, he is an institution, the poppy pinning is a ceremony, and the songs and stories a welcome change from the monotony of the commute. People line up, eight-deep on this Thursday morning. "God bless you," he calls out to those who pass with poppies already on their jackets. "It looks good on you!"

CRTC. Customers no longer forced to give notice for cable cancellation

Beginning early in the new year, Canadian consumers will no longer be required to give 30 days notice to cancel or switch their cable, Internet or telephone subscriptions.

And the country's telecom regulator is hinting of more changes to come, including the prospect of regulating "disruptive" online video services such as Netflix.

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission announced Thursday it is banning service providers — including new entrants offering over-the-Internet phone service — from demanding a 30-day cancellation period for contracts.

The regulator said it got an earful about the requirement during recent public consultations on the future of television broadcasting and distribution.

"Consumer groups and individual Canadians expressed a desire to see these policies eliminated," the CRTC said in a statement.

The move will make it easier for consumers to take advantage of Canada's competitive market for cable, Internet access and Internet-based phone services, also known as VOIP, the commission said.

The order, the first to come out of the CRTC's Let's Talk TV public hearings in September, goes into effect Jan. 23. THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Verifying the authenticity'

Ontario changes course on ticket sellers and resellers

Ontario's Liberal government wants to reverse an earlier move that made it illegal for ticket sellers to have a business relationship with resale sites that can charge many times the face value of tickets to entertainment and sporting events.

The province passed a law in December 2010 to stop U.S. entertainment giant Ticketmaster from selling and then reselling tickets to the same event through sites it owned, which the Liberals said would ensure fair access to events.

The Ticket Speculation Act was enacted after people complained they tried to buy concert tickets the moment they went on sale, only to be redirected to another site where prices were much higher.

Now the Liberals are proposing changes to allow business relationships between ticket sellers and resellers "for the purpose of verifying the authenticity" of tickets.

The proposed changes would also allow tickets to be resold above face value "where tickets are verified or have a money-back guarantee."

The government says consumers in the online resale market can be vulnerable to fraud because electronic tickets can be easily reproduced.

RIDING THE TTC WITH THE CUSTOMER IN MIND

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

Earlier this week, I rode the 504 King streetcar to talk with operators and customers about the challenges we face serving one of the busiest and most congested roads in the city.

We are working with the City to improve the flow of the 504 service. It was good to see the new, illuminated "no left turn" signs that have been installed to reinforce turning restrictions during rush hour. This is just one of a suite of measures that is being implemented in partnership with the City.

Other initiatives include stricter parking enforcement, restrictions on times when deliveries can be made, and better on-street supervision by TTC personnel to manage bunching and gaps in service. Operators have told me that more needs to be done to prevent motorists from blocking streetcar tracks late at night – an issue that we will take up with relevant parties.

The operator I rode with is an experienced 15-year veteran of the King service so he was well-placed to describe the daily challenges on that route. By 5 p.m., the streetcar was already full as we headed west through the city, this being a typical evening rush hour. So what are we doing to improve service? In addition to the measures described, we are taking another look at our fleet plan to maximize the number of higher capacity, articulated streetcars, or ALRVs, on King (and Queen) before the new streetcars enter service on these routes. We had originally intended to retire the ALRVs first as they are less reliable than the standard-sized cars, but our 2015 budget request will seek funding to extend the life of the ALRVs to maximize capacity and mitigate crowding.

Second, we are reviewing the roll-out plans for the new streetcar to see if sufficient vehicles can be delivered in time for earlier deployment onto these two major routes, rather than the current plan of 2016/17. Plans for next year also include measures such as all-door boarding across all streetcar routes for customers holding proof of payment.

As CEO, it's important, of course, that I spend time on the network to see what more needs to be done. With continued management focus – and an increase in sustainable funding – we will progressively work to improve the quality of your journey.

TTC WORKING TO UPGRADE TRACK AND SIGNALS

On Wednesday, the TTC saw two major system failures on the subway – a signal problem on Line 1 and a train detection issue on Line 2. Signals (the red, yellow and green lights seen in subway tunnels) and train detection mechanisms are crucial for the safe operation of trains. If either system malfunctions, they resort to a "fail safe" mode, or a red light. To overcome either issue until the problem is fixed, operators reduce train speed and remain in constant communication with Transit Control. Unfortunately, the impact to customers is significant delays through the affected area and slower service across the entire subway line.

As most of our customers already know, the TTC has had weekend closures of portions of Line 1 for the past two years for signal upgrade work. The existing signal system is 60 years old in many places and should have been replaced 20 years ago. This work, though, takes time, and replacing the entire signal system with a modern, reliable system that is computer-based, and does not rely on fuses and relay switches, is about five years away from completion. Signal replacement for Line 2 is something we must also do and is part of the TTC's 10-year capital budget program. Renewal of transit infrastructure is critical to keeping the system operating safely and effectively.

Last week, the Royal Canadian Legion launched its annual TTC Poppy Campaign. On Tuesday, Nov. 11, decorated Canadian veterans can ride TTC buses, streetcars, subway and the SRT for free. At 11 a.m., all TTC vehicles will pause for a moment of silence to commemorate those who served and continue to serve Canada.

BATHURST ST. AND DUNDAS ST. W. CLOSED FOR TTC AND CITY WORK

TTC and City work to improve transit and roadways on Bathurst Street is well underway, with Phase 3 resulting in the closure of the Dundas and Bathurst street intersection, and the diversion of the 505-305 Dundas and 511 Bathurst routes. During this final phase, the TTC will be replacing switches and tracks at the intersection, work that will result in a more reliable service for years to come. Customers requiring an accessible connection to or from Toronto Western Hospital are advised to speak with a TTC supervisor on scene.

MPs re-victimized by public airing of complaints: Mulcair

Pending investigation. Trudeau announced suspensions of two Liberal MPs yesterday over allegations

Two female New Democrat MPs have been victimized a second time by Justin Trudeau's decision to publicize their complaints of inappropriate behaviour against two Liberal MPs, NDP Leader Tom Mulcair says.

Mulcair confirmed Thursday that it was complaints from two NDP MPs that prompted Trudeau to suspend Scott Andrews and Massimo Pacetti from the Liberal caucus pending an investigation.

Speaking in Whitby, Ont., Mulcair said he knew about the complaints but had not pursued them because the women wanted to keep the matter confidential.

"Our No. 1 concern was to make sure that they got the help they needed and that their wishes were respected," he said.

"Those wishes included a very strong desire to keep this confidential. That was their request and we were not about to override that and make them victims a second time."

The Liberal leader announced Wednesday that he was suspending Pacetti and Andrews over allegations of "serious personal misconduct" levelled by two MPs from another party. He did not name the other party or the complainants or specify the nature of the alleged misconduct.

The matter has been referred to the secretive multi-party board of internal economy. The Liberals are asking that an independent third party be brought in to investigate the complaints.

Trudeau took action after one of the complainants personally complained to him on Oct. 28 about the Liberal MPs' conduct. He instructed Liberal whip Judy Foote to discuss the matter with her NDP counterpart, Nycole Turmel.

Nevertheless, Mulcair said New Democrats had no idea Trudeau was going to make the matter public on Wednesday.

Liberals have questioned how Trudeau was supposed to respond to a complaint made directly to him without revealing, at least in general terms, why he was suspending Andrews and Pacetti. Trudeau himself said Wednesday he had a duty to make the matter public. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Soldier dies of injuries following training exercise

A young soldier who was training to become an infantryman has died of injuries he suffered at an army base in Alberta.

Pte. Steven Allen, 20, of Victoria, was standing in a lookout tower at CFB Wainwright around noon Monday when the structure collapsed.

The military said he was airlifted to an Edmonton hospital where he succumbed to his injuries Thursday.

Another soldier who was standing in the lookout tower with him was not seriously hurt.

Allen joined the military last fall and completed his basic training course earlier this year. He was training at Wainwright to become a fully qualified infantry soldier in the regular forces.

Fraser Logan, a military spokesman, said the circumstances of the collapse of the lookout tower are under investigation.

This is the second training death at the sprawling base this year. Other soldiers have died at the base while training in 2008, 2007 and 2005. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bin Laden shooter reveals identity

Robert O'Neill. 'In that second, I shot him two times in the forehead. Bap! Bap! The second time as he's going down'

The retired Navy SEAL who says he shot al-Qaida leader Osama bin Laden in the forehead publicly identified himself Thursday amid a debate among special operations brethren about whether they should break silence about their secret missions.

Robert O'Neill, 38, told The Washington Post in an interview that he fired the two shots that killed bin Laden. He first recounted the story in February 2013 to Esquire magazine, which identified him only as "the shooter." One current and one former SEAL confirmed to The Associated Press that O'Neill was long known to have fired the shots that killed the leader of the international terror group responsible for the Sept. 11 attacks.

O'Neill told the Post that shots also were fired by two other SEAL team members, including Matt Bissonnette, who described the raid somewhat differently in his book, "No Easy Day."

O'Neill discussed his role in the raid during a private meeting with relatives of victims of the 9-11 attack on New York's World Trade Center before the recent opening of the National Sept. 11 Memorial Museum. He donated the shirt he was wearing in the operation, which is now on display there.

O'Neill is scheduled to be featured in lengthy segments next week on Fox News. He told the Post he decided to go public because he feared his identity was going to be leaked by others. Indeed, his name was published Monday by SOFREP, a website operated by former special operations troopers.

The actions of both O'Neill and Bissonnette have drawn scorn from some of their colleagues. In an Oct. 31 open letter, Rear Adm. Brian Losey, who commands the Naval Special Warfare Group, and Force Master Chief Michael Magaraci, the top noncommissioned officer of the group, urged SEALs to lower their public profile. Their comments were widely perceived as being aimed at O'Neill and Bissonnette.

"At Naval Special Warfare's core is the SEAL ethos," the letter says. "A critical (tenet) of our ethos is 'I do not advertise the nature of my work, nor seek recognition for my actions."'

The letter added, "We do not abide wilful or selfish disregard for our core values in return for public notoriety or financial gain."

Debra Burlingame, whose brother Charles Burlingame was the pilot of the hijacked plane that crashed into the Pentagon, attended the 9-11 museum ceremony. She said O'Neill, whose name was not divulged at the event, offered the families clarity on conflicting information they had received about the raid.

She said she didn't have an opinion about whether SEALs should disclose information about their deeds. "Whatever that (SEALs') ethos is, is between the SEALS," she said. "The 9-11 families are the beneficiaries of any rules he might have broken or whatever lines he might have crossed."

"He went through the mission in really in great detail. All that information was very helpful to me because this is a figure in a terror organization that has loomed large in our lives," she said, adding that she listened to him so intently that the 9-11 commemorative coin she was clasping tightly in her hand left a bruise.

In the Esquire piece, O'Neill said he was one of two SEALs who went up to the third floor of the building where bin Laden was hiding. The first man fired two shots at bin Laden as he peeked out of the bedroom, but O'Neill says those shots missed. The man then tackled two women in the hallway outside of bin Laden's bedroom.

O'Neill went into the bedroom, he recounts. "There was bin Laden standing there. He had his hands on a woman's shoulders, pushing her ahead, not exactly toward me but by me, in the direction of the hallway commotion. It was his youngest wife, Amal."

O'Neill added: "In that second, I shot him two times in the forehead. Bap! Bap! The second time as he's going down. He crumpled onto the floor in front of his bed and I hit him again. Bap! Same place. ... He was dead."

Microsoft to offer latest Office iPad, iPhone apps for free

No such thing as a free lunch. The company is taking a 'freemium' tack, hoping iPhone and iPad users will eventually pay for extras

Microsoft is offering free upgraded versions of its Office software for iPhones and iPads, as the software giant further embraces the so-called "freemium" strategy favoured by many newer companies seeking success online.

Give away a basic version of a popular service, and the world may beat a path to your door and be willing to pay a little more for extras, or so the thinking goes.

Microsoft, the longtime king of desktop software, has generally protected its model of getting paid upfront for what it developed. But as the company strives to stay relevant for workers and consumers in an increasingly mobile world — and better compete with Google, Apple and others — it is offering substantial versions of its most popular products free of charge for smartphones and tablets. Microsoft is hoping to keep people using its products across all their devices, while betting that many will ultimately pay for fuller-featured versions of the software.

As more workers use devices other than desktop PCs, they want to have the same capabilities on all their devices, says Michael Atalla, director of Microsoft's Office apps product management.

ELEPHANTS, ARTISTS & ALLEGED ARSES

THE METRO LIST

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

1 Elephant stampede in America. After this week's midterm elections, U.S. President Barack Obama must feel as if an elephant sat on his head. Republicans gained: seven seats in the Senate, giving them control; 12 seats in the House of Representatives, strengthening their grip; and three governorships. Imagine if Stephen Harper had to govern while the Liberals or NDP had a majority in the Commons. On the upside, Obama, who is limited to two terms under the U.S. Constitution and can't run again in 2016, should have plenty of time to work on his golf game.

2 D.C. bud? Speaking of high places, Washington, D.C., is one of three U.S. jurisdictions that voted to legalize marijuana this week, the others being Alaska and Oregon — where, as far as we can tell, everything is legal. So now there are five: Washington state and Colorado voted to legalize pot last year. (Plus there are 23 states that allow the sale and use of medical marijuana.) So whenever the politicians in Washington do something that boggles the mind, we'll know the answer to the inevitable question: "What were they smoking?"

3 The physics of Hollywood. As if the Big Bang Theory weren't enough, quantum physics is taking over the big screen, too. This week's big Hollywood release is Interstellar, in which Matthew McConaughey and Anne Hathaway travel to the stars through a black hole. Making sure the math works, renowned physicist Kip Thorne is the movie's science adviser. Also released today: The Theory of Everything, about the genius who defined black holes, Stephen Hawking. Coming up on November 28 is The Imitation Game, about another mathematical genius, Alan Turing, the father of the computer. Sylvester Stallone, where are you when we need you?

4 Paint by the numbers. You've worked ceaselessly to put the kid through school, hoping for a doctor or a lawyer or at least an MBA. But the apple of your eye wants to be a painter. Before you unpack The Lecture, you should know that Édouard Manet's Spring went for $65 million at Christie's in New York this week, while over at Sotheby's, Vincent Van Gogh's Still Life, Vase With Daisies and Poppies sold for $61.8 million. Of course, painters are generally worth more after they're dead, while lawyers usually only have to wait until they make partner.

5 Big names, big accusations. After last week's frankly astonishing revelations about Jian Ghomeshi and his alleged treatment of women (and at least one man), this week it just got more astonishing when two Liberal MPs were suspended after being accused of harassment by two NDP MPs. And we're not talking during Question Period. Meanwhile, more skeletons are rattling in the closets of Parliament Hill. Stay tuned.

Starlings have once again been putting on a spectacular display as they gather in huge murmurations at Gretna in the south of Scotland.

Tens of thousands of the birds are regularly seen around this time of year near the Dumfries and Galloway town in southwestern Scotland.

It is one of the most famous locations for the natural spectacle, the definitive reason for which is not known.

Playing by Asimov's robot rules

Movies. Prolific sci-fi writer is credited with establishing the pop-culture protocol for our wired friends, but some films have dared to break the boundaries

Science fiction author Isaac Asimov's Three Laws of Robotics are a trimmed down version of The Ten Commandments for androids. Simple, direct and to the point, Asimov declared, "A robot may not injure a human being or, through inaction, allow a human being to come to harm. A robot must obey the orders given to it by human beings, except where such orders would conflict with the First Law. A robot must protect its own existence as long as such protection does not conflict with the First or Second Law."

Asimov's rules have inspired short stories, video games, music and cartoons. Roland Charles Wagner's short story gave them an erotic spin in Three Laws of Robotic Sexuality while the game Portal 2 sees all military androids sharing one copy of the laws of robotics.

In the tune Robot, space rockers Hawkwind sang, "You'd hold the whole world in your metal claws / If it wasn't for the Three Laws."

And in the Mega Man series by Archie Comics, automatons are almost defeated by an anti-robotic terrorist group because they must abide by the three laws.

This weekend, Baymax, the lovable inflatable robot at the heart of Big Hero Six, abides by the laws.

"Hello," he says.

"I am Baymax, your personal health-care companion."

The roly-poly inflatable bot can almost instantly diagnose and treat a variety of diseases but even when he is transformed into a crime-fighting warrior, he still plays by the rules.

Asimov's stories have been turned into films like I, Robot and Bicentennial Man, where the robots follow the dictums. But not all movies stay true to the rules.

In Aliens, the Hyperdyne Systems 120-A/2 cyborg character Bishop (Ian Holm) says, "It is impossible for me to harm, or, by omission of action, allow to be harmed, a human being," but later tries to kill Ripley (Sigourney Weaver) by choking her with a rolled up porno magazine.

The 1951 classic The Day the Earth Stood Still has both good and evil robots. When alien android Klaatu's message of friendship to earthlings is met with a bullet from a sniper, his eight-foot metal robotic assistant Gort lets loose with a disintegration death ray.

Finally, worse than Blade Runner's killer android Roy (Rutger Hauer) or the robot gunslinger from Westworld, is Maximilian, the silent-but-deadly android from The Black Hole.

Not only does he wordlessly do the bidding of the evil Dr. Hans Reinhardt (Maximilian Schell), the blood-red bot later merges with his human creator to lord over the fire and brimstone of hell. Lawgiver Asimov surely would not approve.

In Big Hero 6, Baymax is a lovable inflatable robot who can instantly diagnose and treat human diseases. CONTRIBUTED

For all intents and purposes Big Hero 6 is an animated superhero movie for kids too young for the violent theatrics of the Marvel universe. The origin story of a superhero troupe, it focuses on Hiro, a robotics prodigy, and Baymax, an inflatable android, as they try to uncover the identity of a masked villain. Without Baymax, Big Hero 6 would mostly be a series of slickly rendered — the animation is lovely — action sequences, catchphrases and plot threads about revenge and life lessons. With him, however, the movie has real heart. The empathetic Baymax doesn't just rescue Hiro's humanity, he gives the movie a large dose of it as well.

Becoming a world-renowned genius

Actor interview. Eddie Redmayne talks about the pressures of playing Stephen Hawking on film

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Felicity Jones and Eddie Redmayne star in The Theory of Everything, which opens in select markets this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

For Eddie Redmayne, it's a tough call as to which aspect of Prof. Stephen Hawking's life was more difficult to portray on screen in The Theory of Everything — the debilitating physical effects of ALS on his body, or sounding convincing discussing the physics Hawking pioneered. But nothing was as challenging, Redmayne discovered, as meeting the man himself without putting his foot in his mouth — something he completely failed at, by the way.

Finding how to play this character physically seems to be the first thing that comes to mind. What was the process for that?

I didn't really know how to approach it, because every single thing affects everything else, so what you're wearing affects the physicality. All of these things, I felt like they were interrelated.

So I spent six months going to a motor neuron disease, ALS, clinic in London, trying to work out what Stephen's physical decline was, because ALS manifests itself completely differently in every single patient.

And so I had to become quite technical with it to begin with, and that meant that when we came to shoot it — because we didn't shoot it chronologically — I could sort of slip into different places.

And hopefully the reason I spent so long prepping is that then the physicality is embedded.

Prof. Hawking has quite a sense of humour. Was there anything about his sense of humour that surprised you?

When I met him, it was about four days before we started filming and I'd spent months researching him. It was like meeting someone that you've Googled.

He can only use (his cheek) muscle now to communicate, so it takes him a while — even longer than in the film — to speak to you. And of course I just started telling him about himself.

I was literally just telling this genius random facts about himself for 20 minutes.

I was slightly nervous and struggling, so I ended up going, "Of course, Stephen, you were born on the eighth of January, which was Galileo's birthday" — because he makes a big point about the fact that he was born 300 years after Galileo was — and I went, "Well, I was born on the sixth of January, so we're both Capricorns!"

Stephen sort of looked at me and then spent five minutes writing out a sentence, and then in his iconic voice he said, "I am an astronomer, not an astrologer."

Stephen Hawking thinks that the actor who is playing him thinks that he's a horoscope writer. This is disastrous.

The Force Awakens for Luke Skywalker

The new Star Wars film has a title. Walt Disney Pictures announced Thursday that the movie previously known only as Episode VII has been dubbed The Force Awakens. The Force Awakens will be released in December 2015. Luke Skywalker's role in the film is subject to further speculation as fans discuss the hero's relationship to the light and dark sides of the Force. Is Luke Skywalker good or bad? That's the question driving one aspect of discussion about the franchise hero's return. Credited with defeating Darth Vader at the end of the original trilogy, episodes IV-VI, Luke Skywalker is said to have gone into hiding, seeking to minimize his influence on the rest of society, fearing that he may fall prey to the power-crazed delusions that turned his own father into Vader.

Far from Earth, family still rules

Movies. Director Christopher Nolan went to great lengths to ensure his film based in outer space remained grounded

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Sure it's an epic science-fiction drama partially filmed using IMAX cameras, with big, sweeping vistas of outer space and thrilling set pieces, but for director and co-writer Christopher Nolan, Interstellar is really a family movie. Or at least a movie about a family.

"When I first looked at (co-writer and brother) Jonah's draft on Interstellar, it was very clear that, at the heart of the story, there was this great family relationship," Nolan says.

"We found the more we explored the cosmic scale of things and the further out into the universe you went, the more the focus came down to who we are as people and what are the connections between us."

The family in question is the Coopers, led by a dad (Matthew McConaughey) whose promising career as a pilot and an engineer was derailed when an environmental calamity made his skills as a farmer more useful to the greater good.

A widower and dreamer, Cooper works the heartland with his young children (Timothée Chalamet and Mackenzie Foy) and his father-in-law (John Lithgow).

Maintaining that core theme and focus sometimes meant engaging in a bit of subterfuge with his collaborators.

Take, for example, how Nolan first pitched the film to composer Hans Zimmer.

"One of the things I did with Hans is I didn't want him to know what the genre was when he started working," Nolan says.

"Before I actually started working on the script, I wrote out a page of what I considered to be the heart of the story — the relationships, the idea of a father having to leave his children — and I gave it to Hans and said, 'Work on that for a day, give me what you've got at the end of the day, and that will be the seed to grow the score from.' And, indeed, the finished score came from that particular creative act.

"And that, I think, is just an illustration of the approach we all tried to take in terms of keeping this about the humanity and using the exploration of the universe as really a lens through which to view ourselves as human beings."

For a director who's tackled amnesia, the landscape of dreams and Gotham City, heading to space was a singular thrill. "Really, space exploration has always represented the most hopeful and optimistic endeavour that mankind has ever really engaged with," Nolan says.

The recent retiring of Space Shuttle Endeavour sticks out in his mind, as he and wife Emma Thomas watched it arrive in L.A.

"We were up at Griffith Park with hundreds of people waving flags and watching this thing fly down," he recalls.

"It was a very moving moment and very melancholy as well because what you felt was the sense of that great endeavour, that hope and optimism, is something that I feel we're in need of again. I feel very strongly that we're at a point now where we need to start looking up again and exploring our place in the universe more."

Matthew McConaughey plays a widower farmer with two children in the sci-fi film Interstellar. CONTRIBUTED

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Angelina determined to have more careers than she has kids

Angelina Jolie says that she's "open" to the idea of pursuing a career in politics — because obviously, she doesn't have enough jobs already.

The actress, writer, director, humanitarian, UN goodwill ambassador and cancer awareness spokeswoman tells Vanity Fair, "When you work as a humanitarian, you are conscious that politics have to be considered. Because if you really want to make an extreme change, then you have a responsibility."

But running for office could be tricky when any opponent can just flash footage of Gia, something Jolie has also considered, admitting that her acting career could "make it less possible" for her to win a high-profile election. "I am conscious of what I do for a living," she says.

McGowan sorry for 'gay misogyny' crack, sort of

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Rose McGowan would like the gay community to know that she's very, very sorry for saying that gay men are "as misogynistic as straight men, if not more so" during a podcast chat with Bret Easton Ellis.

"You want to talk about the fact that I have heard nobody in the gay community, no gay males, standing up for women on any level? I think it's what happens to you as a group when you are starting to get most of what you fought for," she said during the podcast.

"I have not seen a single peep from these people, who supposedly represent lesbians as well. When the Equal Pay Act was shut down by Republicans in the Senate, not a single man mentioned that. I see now people who have basically fought for the right to stand on top of a float wearing an orange Speedo and take (ecstasy). Gay misogyny is a huge problem."

So, about that apology?

In an op-ed for the Advocate, McGowan says she "made a dumb generalization" and could have "articulated my frustration in a better fashion," but stands by her core point that if she doesn't see something with her own eyes, it hasn't happened.

Idris Elba ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

Thanks to Idris, Whedon's Avengers secret isn't secret anymore

Speaking of apologies, Idris Elba might owe one to Joss Whedon. Vulture caught up with the Avengers director and asked him about the details Elba recently let slip regarding himself and Tom Hiddleston popping up in next year's Avengers: Age of Ultron. Not surprisingly, Whedon wasn't pleased.

"Um, should he receive an email from me, there might be an attitude of scold," Whedon says. "When you have a cast of 19,000 people, inevitably, once every month, you pick up (a story) and you're like, 'Awww.'"

Slow Cooker Couscous with Vegetables and Chickpeas. This creation takes time but it's so worth it

RICARDO COOKS
Chef Ricardo
Ricardo Magazine

For an easy, delicious meal, all you need is the flavour-infusing power of a slow cooker and some Middle Eastern spices.

Stewed Vegetables

1. In a large skillet over medium high heat, brown the onions in the oil. Add the garlic and spices and cook for 1 minute. Transfer to the slow cooker and add the remaining ingredients except for the cilantro. Stir well. Season with salt and pepper. Cover and cook on high for 5 hours.

Couscous

1. At the last moment, add the cilantro and stir into the slow cooker. Remove 2 1/2 cups (625 ml) of the boiling hot liquid from the slow cooker and pour into a bowl. Add the couscous and oil and stir. Cover and let rest for 5 minutes. Fluff the couscous with a fork. If the slow cooker is on the Warm mode, heat the broth for a few minutes in the microwave oven before adding the couscous. Otherwise, the broth will not be warm enough to cook the couscous.

2. Serve the couscous with the vegetables and chickpeas.

Mirror exotic meal elements

LIQUID ASSETS

My best advice when asked the secret to a foolproof food and wine pairing is to keep things close to home.

Generally, a wine made in the same place as your entree will make a happier marriage than one from a foreign vineyard.

This is especially true in Europe, where the evolution of winemaking and the culinary arts started around the same time.

What if your dish comes from a country not known for wine? Though Morocco does make some, finding a bottle in Canada will be a challenge. That means going abroad to find a match for Ricardo's veggie and chickpea couscous recipe.

The lack of a featured protein means a white will pour better than a red. Think something light, dry and refreshing like a pinot grigio or sauvignon blanc.

Mirroring the exotic spice elements on your plate with a like-minded wine is another avenue. The tropical, fruit-salad flavours of Cono Sur's Bicicleta 2013 Viognier ($9.99 - $12.99) from Chile are balanced by good acidity and a nice white pepper finish. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. ## QPR confirms interest in Defoe

Queens Park Rangers have confirmed their interest in Toronto FC striker Jermain Defoe but denied reports that a deal is in place already.

"No, I don't think anything is anywhere near being concluded with Jermain," QPR manager Harry Redknapp told a news conference in London on Thursday when asked about Defoe.

"We tried to get Jermain before the (summer) deadline, so I don't think there is any movement on that one at the moment. I am a big fan of Jermain's.... But the figures would have to be right and everything."

Leafs' Ashton banned 20 games

Toronto Maple Leafs forward Carter Ashton was suspended for 20 games without pay by the NHL on Thursday after failing a drug test.

Ashton said in a statement released through the players' union that he inadvertently ingested clenbuterol, a prohibited substance, through an inhaler during an asthma attack in late August. He said he used another athlete's inhaler twice and "incorrectly assumed that there were no problems" with the device.

Ashton added he wasn't seeking an "athletic advantage or to knowingly violate" the drug program. He said a team doctor has since diagnosed his exercise-induced asthma and he has been prescribed an inhaler.

Leafs get off to rocky start in Colorado

Avalanche forward Jarome Iginla puts a hit on James van Riemsdyk of the Toronto Maple Leafs during the first period on Thursday night at Pepsi Center in Denver, Colo.
Leafs centre Daniel Winnik left the game with a serious injury after hitting his head on the ice. Winnik was injured 45 seconds into the game when he collided with Avalanche defenceman Jan Hejda near the Colorado blue-line. He fell awkwardly on the right side of his head and flipped onto his front. He lay motionless while trainers from both teams secured him on a backboard and took him off the ice.

Argos enter finale with fighting chance

CFL. Despite losing Ray and a 7-10 record, playoffs not out of reach for Toronto

Trevor Harris doesn't have the luxury of easing into his first CFL start.

Harris, 28, makes his CFL starting debut Friday night when the Toronto Argonauts host the expansion Ottawa Redblacks. He replaces veteran Ricky Ray, who suffered a concussion in Sunday's 17-14 loss to the Montreal Alouettes.

The Argos (7-10) must beat Ottawa (2-15) to remain in playoff contention. They also require Montreal to defeat the Hamilton Tiger-Cats on Saturday to clinch second in the East Division and host either Saskatchewan or B.C. in the conference semifinal Nov. 16.

"Absolutely," Harris said when told Friday's contest was a must-win for Toronto. "That's the best kind."

Hamilton would clinch second with a Toronto loss or by beating Montreal on Saturday. The Ticats would finish first — and secure home-field advantage for the East final Nov. 23 — by beating the Alouettes by eight points or more.

At first glance, giving a young quarterback the chance to make his first start against an expansion franchise would seem a perfect scenario for the Argos. But they're the only CFL team not to beat Ottawa this season as the Redblacks defeated Toronto 18-17 in their home opener July 18 the only other time the two clubs met.

"They beat us so they've got our attention regardless," Toronto head coach Scott Milanovich said. "If we don't play well they can beat us, they've already proven that."

James preaches patience after Cavs' last-gasp loss

LeBron James was neutralized in Utah by Gordon Hayward, who also hit Wednesday night's game-winning shot in the Jazz's 102-100 win over the Cavaliers. GETTY IMAGE

'Rome wasn't built in a day.' Cleveland's star knows the season is long but acknowledges work must be done following Jazz defeat

LeBron James looked over his shoulder, almost in disbelief.

This isn't what he — or anyone else — imagined for the Cavaliers.

As Utah's Gordon Hayward was mobbed by teammates after hitting a fadeaway shot over the outstretched arm of Cavaliers forward Tristan Thompson at the buzzer to beat Cleveland 102-100 on Wednesday night, James peered back incredulously at the celebration one last time.

He shook his head and walked to the locker room after a second stunning loss in 24 hours.

The Cavs — James, fellow All-Stars Kyrie Irving and Kevin Love, picked by Vegas oddsmakers to win it all — are 1-3 and look nothing like championship contenders. Four games into the season, they are not jelling and are something of a mess.

"Rome wasn't built in a day," James said.

Neither are NBA title teams. Just a week into the season, the Cavaliers have major chemistry issues, a motionless offence and defensive holes they might not be able to address without making a trade or two.

Rookie coach David Blatt has preached patience, but has already toyed with his starting lineup, replacing guard Dion Waiters with veteran Shawn Marion.

One day after James played passively in a loss at Portland to prove a point to his young teammates, Cleveland tied a franchise record with just six assists against Utah.

According to STATS LLC, the six assists are the fewest in a game for any NBA team scoring at least 100 points since 1985-86.

"There's no way you can win a basketball game like that, just having six assists," said James, who had four of the six assists.

"We just can't win like that. We have to figure out a way to help each other and not make it so tough."

And while some Cleveland fans are troubled by the slow start, James seems to be taking it in stride, posting a message on his Twitter page Thursday.

James wrote: "In the words of the great @AaronRodgers12 'RELAX.'"

Appeal hearing ends after second day

Ray Rice suspension. Arbiter to determine if NFL overstepped its authority to modify players original two-game penalty

A hearing for Ray Rice appealing his NFL suspension concluded Thursday after two days and testimony from the former running back and the head of the league.

Rice and his wife Janay Rice left the hearing separately on Thursday about three hours apart after each testified at the New York office of a neutral arbiter. The arbitration hearing will determine whether the NFL overstepped its authority in modifying a two-game suspension of Rice, making it indefinite after video of the running back hitting his wife was released by TMZ.

"I can trust it's a fair process," said Rice's attorney, Peter Ginsberg.

Two people familiar with the case said Thursday there's no timetable for the former federal judge presiding over the case to make her decision, though one person said she has asked the sides to submit closing briefs next week. Both spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the arbiter has told the sides not to discuss details of the private hearing.

NFL commissioner Roger Goodell testified for more than two hours to start Rice's appeal hearing on Wednesday, according to one of the sources. Ray and Janay Rice attended the full hearing on Wednesday.

The hearing takes place nearly two months after the former Pro Bowl running back was suspended indefinitely by the NFL and released by the Baltimore Ravens.

League security chief Jeffery Miller and Baltimore Ravens general manager Ozzie Newsome also testified in the hearing.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Try not to be distracted by promises of fame and fortune today and over the weekend. You need to devote most of your energy to one special relationship instead.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You may be tempted to put pressure on a partner to do something for you but it isn't necessary. Even if they do not agree with your aims they will help out of a sense of duty.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
A problem related to your work is not as difficult to solve as you imagine and the answer will be obvious once you ignore the usual solutions.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Do something guaranteed to shock those who see you as a person who never makes waves. Too many people have been taking you for granted.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You need to be open-minded. A loved one is committed to a course of action and, whether you like it or not, they are going to see it through to the end. Support them 100 per cent.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Try not to take anything or anyone too seriously today. Embrace situations that excite your senses and let what happens just happen.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
People have different ideas of what is right and what is wrong. You need to understand that, and act accordingly, over the next 24 hours.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
You may have purposely kept your distance from someone because you did not know how they might react, but the planets will throw you together today. Your relationship is fated.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Before embarking on a course of action that you have no way of knowing will work, ask yourself if it is really what you want. It could be you have made a decision based on emotion rather than common sense.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
If you want to impress a loved one today you should try something original. Your relationship may have fallen into rut but your feelings for each other are still there.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
You can sense that a friend is not happy but what can you do about it? First, find out why they're uphappy. The only way to do that is to ask them.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Yesterday's full moon swept away barriers. Let your instincts guide you and don't be afraid to move in a new direction.

STOP HAIR LOSS

#1 SELLING IN CANADA

for MEN and for WOMEN

What Causes Hair Loss?

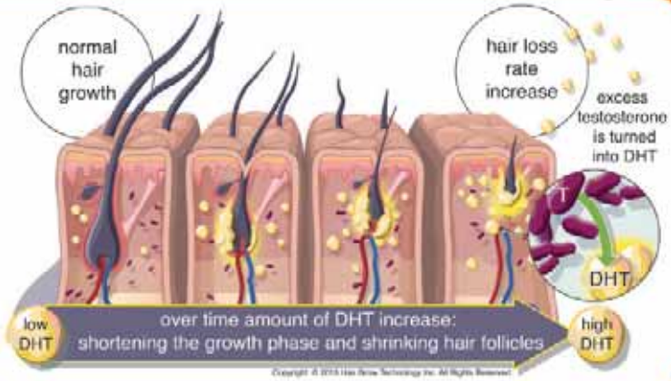
Hair loss is caused by multiple factors; health, medication, diet, stress, illness and hereditary genetics. One major reason is hereditary genetics which determine our potential hair loss condition. Some people see hair loss in their 20's, while others see little hair loss over their lifetime. An enzyme called 5-alpha reductase converts testosterone into dihydrotestosterone (DHT), which inhibits hair production and degrade the follicles over time. This condition is known as androgenic alopecia (AGA), also called male and female pattern baldness. As DHT attack the hair follicles it will lead to thinner and more fragile hair as you age.



normal hair growth
hair loss rate increase excess testosterone is turned into DHT
DHT
low DHT
over time amount of DHT increase:
shortening the growth phase and shrinking hair follicles
high DHT

How does Bio-Fen® PLUS work?

The fenugreek seed extract in both formulas reduces excess blood lipid levels. Fenugreek contains an active plant sterol, which has been shown to inhibit 5-alpha-reductase activity – the enzyme responsible for converting excess testosterone to DHT (which is the primary molecule that causes hair loss). The SDG from flax lignans in both formulas also decreases excess cholesterol - the building block of testosterone. Based on new research on the rate of metabolism of SDG in flax lignans (8-12 hours on average).

How long must I use Bio-Fen® Plus?

Bio-Fen® Plus for Men capsules are usually effective at stopping hair loss within the first two months. However, since healthy hair grows only about 1 cm each month, it may take up to three months before you notice that hair growth is increased or the rate of hair loss is decreased. Anyone experiencing new growth should see it within four months. Once you stop completely your hair growth pattern will slowly go back to the point where you started.

See our website to locate your nearest store that carries *Bio-Fen® Plus.

www.biofen.com • 1-866-424-7745

Available at Health Food Stores, Supplement Stores & Independent Pharmacies

Bio-Fen® Plus for Men will also help to:

- Relieve the urologic symptoms associated with mild to moderate benign prostatic hyperplasia - BPH (e.g. weak urine flow, incomplete voiding, frequent daytime and night time urination).
- Reduce elevated blood lipid levels / hyperlipidemia.

Bio-Fen® Plus for Women will also help to:

- Reduce elevated blood lipid levels/hyperlipidemia
- Prevent iron deficiency.
- Metabolize carbohydrates, fats and proteins.
